How to Protect Yourself

Nothing can guarantee that you won't become a victim of identity theft. However, you can minimize your risk and the damage if a problem develops by making it more difficult for identity thieves to access your personal information.

Here are some tips from the Federal Trade Commission to help protect you or someone you know from becoming a victim of this crime.

- Shred financial documents and paperwork with personal information, before you discard them.
- Protect your Social Security number. Don't carry your Social Security card in your wallet or write your Social Security number on a check. Ask to use another identifier if possible.
- Don't give out personal information on the phone, through the mail, or over the Internet, unless you know who you are dealing with.
- Never click on links sent in unsolicited emails. Use firewalls, anti-spyware, and anti-virus software to protect your home computer; keep them up-to-date.
- Don't use an obvious password like your birth date, your mother's maiden name, or the last four digits of your Social Security number.
- Keep your personal information in a secure place at home, especially if you have roommates, employ outside help or are having work done in your house.
